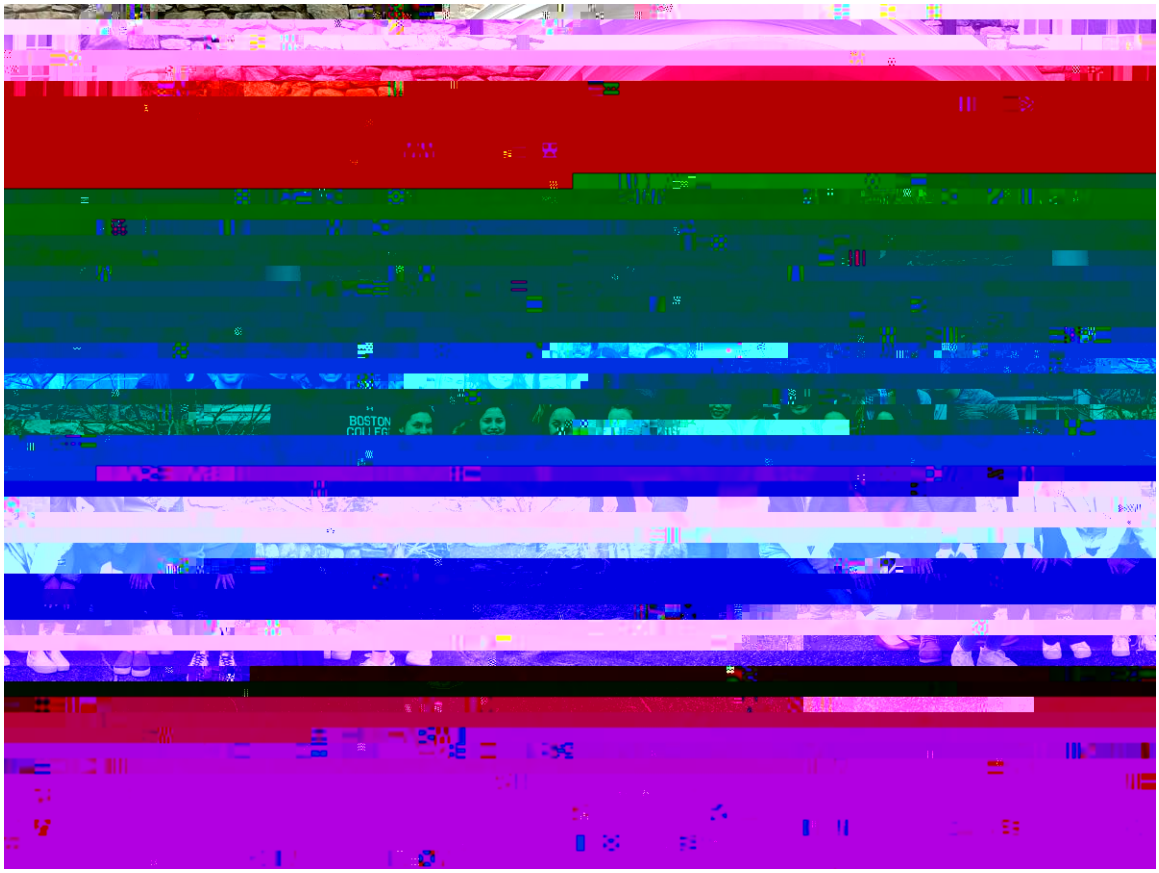
The Winston Center for Leadership and Ethics

ANNUAL REPORT



2020

REFLECTIONS AND LOOKING AHEAD

2020 has no doubt been a year that we will never forget. In March, COVID-19 ground the Winston Center's programming to a halt, and the Brennan Symposium, the Chambers Lecture, and a few Lunch with a Leader sessions were canceled. Luckily, we [redacted] to [redacted] a couple events prior to the shutdown. We [redacted] with Environmental S[redacted] and featured Columbia University's [redacted]ames Hansen and Jeffrey Sachs, legendary investor Jeremy Grantham who spoke about the global climate crisis and the [redacted] of divestment. Ambassador Nick Burns '78 [redacted] the Clough Colloquium speaker. He [redacted] the global trends of the world we are living in, including the role of the United States. Stephen Franco, CGSOM '05, [redacted] our Social Impact & Lunch speaker, who spoke about investing in companies whose missions have a [redacted] social, and governance (ESG) commitment.

In the fall, following [redacted] Floyd's death and the resurgence of the Black Lives Matter movement around the world, the Center featured a trio of African [redacted] who spoke about [redacted] affecting their communities. In a collaboration with the Lowell Humanities Series and the History [redacted] Carol [redacted] professor at Emory University and author of One Person, No Vote, [redacted] about the history of voter suppression and its impact. The [redacted] of Chobani, and Wells Fargo's Kate Clifford-[illegible]'95, [illegible] chief operating officer of corporate [illegible] rounded out the semester's speaker lineup.

Like last fall, all of our upcoming spring programming will be in a virtual format. Speakers will include Miles Taylor, former official in the Trump administration who was revealed as the [redacted] of the New York Times article "I article

SPRING 2020

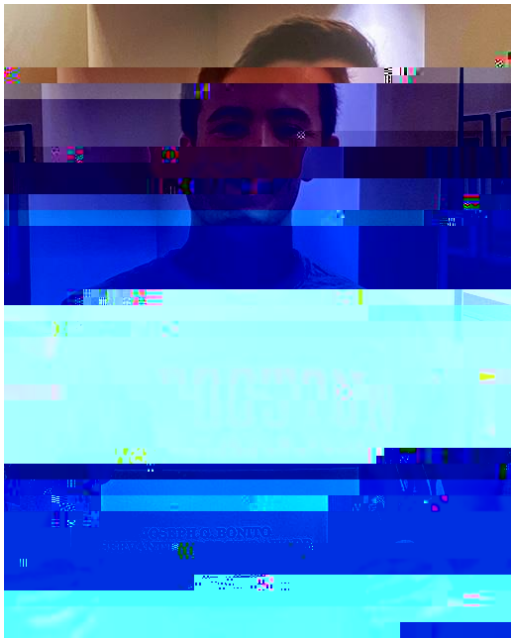
Ambassador Nick Burns with Chuck and Gloria Glough

featured former undersecretary of state for

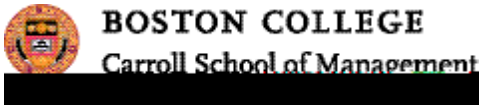
STUDENT PROGRAMS CONTINUED

Class of 2020 graduates and directors of the Jenks Leadership Program Matt Davis '20 and Morgan [redacted] '20 attended the US Naval Academy's leadership symposium, Invest in People: The Power of Mentorship. Admiral James G. Stavridis (USN Ret.) and Christopher A. Wray, director of the FBI, were guest

Morgan Gamble and Matt Davis



Jason Kauper, [redacted] the recipient of the 2020 Joseph G. Bonito Servant Leadership Award. Class of 2020 service [redacted] tackles [redacted] like affordable housing,



E-mail: winston.center@bc.edu
Website: bcwinstoncenter.org

Tel: 617–552–9296
Fulton Hall, Suite 315

winstoncenterBC