The Writer and the Public

sam tanenhaus, editor
new york times book review

thursday, april 19, 2012 3:30 p.m.
devlin hall, room 101

Sam Tanenhaus will address the public role of the contemporary intellectual, exploring ways in which serious thinkers engage with a range of audiences and interests. As editor at the New York Times Book Review, Tanenhaus enjoys a particularly rich perspective on the shifting relationships between 21st-century writers and the public.
